A FATAL MISTAKE

Bowling Green Man Drinks Carbolic Acid in the Dark.

DIES FROM THE EFFECTS

A Big Fire in Buffalo Destroys Property to the Amount of $260,000—Mills and Elevators Burn.

GETS DAMAGES IN APPELLATE COURT

DIED OF STRONG DRINK

Bowling Green, June 18.—M. E. Ryan, a harness maker, and a respect- ed man, drank carbolic acid through mistake in the dark at home last night and died from the effects of it.

FIRE NEAR BUFFALO

Buffalo, N. Y. June 18.—Fire on Buffalo Island on the river front here burned mills, elevators and docks valued at $260,000.

RECKLESS DRIVING FATAL

Bansky, June 18.—Reckless driving by two lads killed a two-year-old child on the street today.

GOV. PINGREE AT DEATH'S DOOR

London, June 18.—The death of ex-Governor Pingree, of Michigan, is imminently expected.

MRS. MCKINLEY OUT OF DANGER

Washington, June 18.—The doctors say that Mrs. McKinley is out of immediate danger, and is expected to recover.

A DAUGHTER BORN

St. Petersburg, June 18.—A daughter was last night born to the Gairards.

INDY GETS DAMAGES.

Frankfort, June 18.—The appellate court today affirmed the case of State vs. Ley Wilson, from Bardwell, who was awarded $1,500 damages against the Illinois Central for injuries received while playing on a hand car, his hand being hurt by the cage.

SOONER THAN EXPECTED.

Shanklin, Pa., June 18.—Daniel Richards, aged twenty, was killed near the home of his fiancee on the eve of his wedding to Miss Walter, of Green Ridge.

WANTS A YACHT.

Mr. C. W. Roberts, proprietor of the boat factory in Metropoli, was in the city today looking for the "Brook Hill." He is looking for a good yacht and is very much pleased with the "Brook Hill."

For indulgence there is nothing that equals Winstead's Laxative Phosphate.

Episode of Algerian Insurrection.

M. Hughes Le Roux, who will be the 1902 lecturer of the Cercle Francais of Harvard University, is the originator of a play which has just been put on the stage at the Ambigu theater in Paris. It was adapted by Pierre Desoures from Le Roux's "La Matre de l'Heure," the title being changed to "L'Entre France," as better adapted to the stage. It is an episode of the Algerian insurrection of 1870. M. Le Roux recently started for the court of Meudon, king of Abyssinia, where he was sent by the French government on an official mission.

Winstead's Laxative Phosphate cures that tired feeling. At all drug stores.

County Attorney Eugene Graves left this morning for St. Vincent's to be absent a week, and Attorney Oscar Kahn is acting county attorney during his absence.

SKULL CRUSHED.

FATAL ACCIDENT TO A COLOR-

ED BOY THIS MORNING

EARLY.

A Big Fire in Buffalo Destroys Property to the Amount of $260,000—Mills and Elevators Burn.

ALVERNA MARSHALL, colored, aged nine, was probably fatally injured about four miles from the city on the Cairo road this morning early. He is a son of John Marshall, of the Maxon's Mills section, and was coming to town on a wagon with J. W. Howell, colored, of the same locality. He fell off the wagon and the wheel passed over his head, severing the flesh and fracturing the skull.

Dr. Kilmough and Burrows were called, and dressed the injury. The boy may recover, but the chances are that he will not.

BAKER-MARTIN.

A PH. HOME WEDDING THIS MORNING AT 10:30 O'CLOCK.

May Friends Witnessed the Ceremony.

Which Was Performed By Rev.

H. B. Johnston.

An exceedingly pretty wedding v-that of Miss Mary Martin and Mr. Claude Baker, this morning at 10:30 o'clock at the family residence on Madison street. A number of friends and relatives of the popular young couple witnessed the ceremony which was performed by the Rev. H. B. Johnston, presiding elder of the Madison district.

The wedding march was very charmingly played by Miss Birdie Gilbert. The attendants were Miss Irene Schwab and Mr. Edwin Thompson, Miss Anale Street and Mr. John Walker. Miss Schwab was effectively gowned in white and Miss Street in pink and both looked very pictureque.

The bride, always attractive and charming, looked her best in a dainty street gown of green with hat to match.

Miss Martin is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Martin, and in her short residence here has made many friends and admirers.

Mr. Baker is well known in Paducah and is the popular clerk at H. Weill & Sons.

Quite a number of beautiful and elegant presents were received.

Mr. and Mrs. Baker left at noon for Buffalo and the Pan-American exposition, after which they will be at home at 728 Madison street.

The following visiting persons at tended the wedding: Mr. and Mrs.

John Remeda, of Greenville, Ky.

Miss Sarah Snyder, of Carbondale,

Ill.; Mrs. O. H. Webber, of Poplar Bluff, Mo., and Miss Emily Martin, of Greenville, Ky.

BANKRUPTCY NOTICE.

In the District Court of the United States for the district of Kentucky, in bankruptcy.

In the matter of William R. Dunn, a bankrupt.

On this 18th day of June, A. D., 1901, no considering the petition of the aforesaid bankrupt for discharge, filed on the 18th day of June, A. D., 1901, it is ordered by the court that a hearing be had upon the same on the 20th day of June, A. D., 1901 before said court at Louisville and district at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, or as near thereto as practicable; and that notice thereof be published one time in the Paducah Sun, a newspaper printed in said district, and that all known creditors and other persons in interest may appear at said time and place and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of the said petitioner should not be granted.

Witness the foregoing.

Manuscript of Mudson.

A scientific expedition is to start from St. Petersburg to examine the immense number of manuscripts discovered at Mudson by Russian troops.

In the collection are a large number of Greek and Roman documents, which are supposed to have been taken by the Mongolians on the retreat from the Occident. It is believed that the manuscripts are of great value.

Wooden of the Woods.

Many watches make five beats per second, 800 each minute, 15,000 per hour, or $2,000 per day. Thus it will be seen that a half dozen turns of the key once a day, taking up four seconds of time, stores up a modicum of power in the spring which is cut up into nearly half a million of beats. If you multiply the daily beats by 60,000, the number of days in the year, you find that the watch ticks 157,780,000 times while the earth is making one annual trip around the sun.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE POLICE COURT

Judge Samuels had another large docket today.

Kenny Garr, a young man said to be of good family of Union County, Ky., is in jail charged with having robbed W. J. E. Gray of $70. Gray claims that Garr drugged him and that he knew his money was being taken from his pocket but was powerless to do anything. The case was continued until Thursday.

TO MEET JULY 4.

Washington, June 18.—Governor Allen, of Porto Rico, wired the heads of departments here that he has fixed July 4th as the date of a special session of the legislature to set the date for a proclamation declaring free trade between the island of Porto Rico and the United States.

NO INDICTMENTS.

Hopkinsville, Ky., June 18.—The grand jury adjourned today without finding any indictments in the asylum case.

A DAILY THOUGHT.
"Every day is a commencement day. Every hour is an examination hour."

A man named Joe Harris was hanged near Athens, Ala., for being suspected of burning a barn. It's a good thing for Joseph that they didn't know he burned it.

Paducah needs a system of garbage wagons. They would improve the health and add to the attractiveness of the city, and anything that would do is something badly needed.

If all the ex-members of the present Democratic administration who have been "fired" for incompetency or other causes, vote against the city hall clique, this alone ought to give the Republicans a small majority.

The editors who are so ably dissecting and scapiently criticizing the supreme court's decision in the insular cases, should wait until the vacation is over and perhaps the misguided judges will resign in their favor.

Some of the Democrats seem to think that there is absolutely no chance for the Republicans in Paducah to win in the fall election. The Republicans, however, seem to cause them considerable uneasiness for a party that has no chance of election.

There is no use in the Democrats allowing the Republican nominations to worry them. They might spend their spare moments in the meantime putting some finishing touches on the county primary, that remarkable thing in which everything went. It may be that the Democrats will have to amend it, as the court of appeals has decided that wide open primaries don't stick.

The United States has gained in many ways by her conservative policy in China. It is estimated that our trade increased considerably last year over the preceding year, despite the serious and complicating troubles in China.

The Chinese exhibits a greater degree of respect for the Americans than any other nation, and the commercial outlook is most promising for us. The nations whose soldiers engaged in murder and pillage will always be regarded with distrust and hatred by the Chinese.

The man who gets the Republican nomination for mayor will express his views on public questions in a platform. The people will know exactly where he stands. They will know what he is for and what he will advocate if elected, and will be better able to judge whether they are for him or not. If what he advocates is not what they coincide in, and what the Democratic nominee believes in—if any one can find out what that is—then he stands, he will not be expected to vote for the Republican.

The Republican nominee will have nothing to fear in supporting his platform. If the Democrats are equally as well situated, it is expected that they will also let the public see what they are for. It is not necessarily the man nor the politics. It is to be largely what he advocates in the way of municipal reform. What he is in favor of doing if he is elected mayor and has a co-operative council. It will be the same with the nominees for council. What the Republican nominee for mayor advocates the nominees for council will also advocate, and when it comes to a vote the voter can tell just what he is casting his ballot for.

In five years the only race the Republicans in Paducah have lost was that in which the misinterpretation was made that the sewerage system was a fraud and a prodigal expenditure of public funds. The Republicans built the sewerage and as they system has now been proclaimed by all competent authorities to be a benefit and a success, the Republicans will win the next election on their public spirit in solving the problem and on account of the many good and necessary improvements promised in the next few years. The Democrats a few years ago needlessly spent $1,000 on a sewerage survey and then the political effect stand.

The Republicans had a long apprenticeship and a non-union miner's boarding house.

YESTERDAY'S CHICKEN FIGHTS.

Several sports from Princeton and several local sports went across the river yesterday afternoon to have a cock fight. The Princeton men won the best two out of three. This is the third cock fight of the season and was well attended. This is a sport that is gaining much interest and bids fair to outrival the gun club.

MARRY IN MISSOURI

Cards have been received here announcing the marriage of Kansas City on June 16th, of Miss Jessie Rhodes, to Mr. Fred William Grier. Miss Rhodes is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Rhodes, who resided here for a short time, Mr. Rhodes having charge of the New Richmond Hotel.

EXAMINATION TODAY.

The Civil Service examination for clerk and carrier will be held at the U.S. government building here tomorrow under the direction of Mr. Fred Ashton.

MORE DYNAMITING.

Madisonville, Ky., June 18.—Dynamite was exploded under the Rev. O. H. Lightowler's home. He keeps success of it. It is the Republican party that is "progressive" and that gives the people what they are entitled to in the way of improvement. If Paducah had a few more Business Men's councils she would now be twice as large and important, the people would be much happier, and not a cent poorer.

According to the local organs new evidence has been discovered in the assassination case? It was not generally known that any new evidence was needed, and it is a matter of general wonder among the best people of the state whether this remarkable "new evidence" is of the same stripe as that of the fugitive barber Weaver, or of some new but equally unique manufacture.

When the Republicans get ready, they will name a man to beat the Democratic nominee. They will make the old war horse, Uncle Davy, get up a sight of steam for one of his age, and he will have to get on one side of the fence and stay there. No more hopping from one side to the other. No hide and seek game and no being on both sides of the fence at the same time. He will have to come to law at last.

THE GUN CLUB.

A BOARD OF CENSORS TO BE APPOINTED BY THE CLUB.

The Members Will Probably Elect a New Referee at the Next Meeting.

There has been some little trouble among a few members of the Paducah Club within the past few days, and Friday afternoon, according to reports, there came news concerning difficulties at the shoot at La Bell park. The club has decided to have a board of censors, whose duties will be important and will include settling all personal disagreements and questions among the members and which will see that the proper discipline is maintained. It is said that Drs. Boyd and Henshaw and Messrs. H. C. Brown and Lang will compose the board.

The club is also, it is understood, to elect a new referee, and will abolish the prize system in vogue for some time at the regular shoots.

The Sun's Prize Stories

Written by Our Boys and Girls.

Last week The Sun announced a prize story contest opened to its young boy and girl readers under sixteen years of age.

The response has been most pleasing and today the first instalment of the stories is published. A few of the stories will be published as announced, every Tuesday and every other Tuesday the prize for the best story appearing in the preceding issues will be awarded. It is the intention to allow the children to decide which of the stories are the best. This will be done by allowing them to vote for the best story on the coupon below, and the story receiving the most votes will receive the prize. The coupon is as follows:

I vote for _____ as the best story appearing in The Sun's contest for the past two weeks.

Signed _____

Date _____

The publishers wish it understood that every child under sixteen years of age is welcome to enter the contest and stands as good a show as any to win the prizes offered. Send in your stories at any time and they will be taken care of.

"BILL," THE ERRAND BOY.

William Butler was the only surviving member of the old Butler family. The late Henry Butler had suffered greatly in the financial world. When he died he left his son, William to work for his livelihood. William had received the nickname of "Bill" from his playmates at school and being only 15 years old had already received a good education. Living in a village of about 1,000 people work was not a superfluous thing in those days. After several weeks wandering around the village he last was given a trial as an errand boy in the dry goods store which being the only one in the village, was a very large one and had a good trade. The dry goods store was run by H. P. Pierce & Son, the old man left the store mostly in charge of his son. Being a man of great business ability he had always pleased his customers and had, by now, realized a vast income. "Bill" Butler was the errand boy, who went on errands through the village carrying to the customers parcels, packages, etc. He had won a good feeling from all the hands employed in the store and was especially liked by the junior partner.

On one occasion he was summoned to the office, being told he was wanted there by Mr. Pierce. "Bill" went into the office light-hearted for he did not remember anything he had done to cause a reprimand from his "boss." "Bill" was frankly told by Mr. Pierce he was needed no longer in his service. "Bill" was dumbfounded with surprise, as for the cause Mr. Pierce said he had been accused of taking money from the cash drawer as small amounts had been missing occasionally. "Bill" was seen taking things from the drawer but they were slips of papers kept there to put on parcels. "Bill" left the office with his week's pay. He had told Mr. Pierce that if he would prove his innocence he would ask for reinstatement. He was told if he should be wanted again he was to be reinstated by Mr. Pierce. "Bill" had taken bookkeeping and short hand and was fully competent to the work of his predecessor. When the old man died he was made junior partner with Mr. Pierce the senior. Thus rose "Bill," the errand boy.

"SANS GENE."

AN INDIAN STORY.

Annonwan was a young Indian boy, apparently about sixteen years of age at the time of this story. He lived with his parents and a sister in a large but rudely constructed tepee, or wigwam, made of three limbs covered with different kinds of skins, of all shades and sizes of the buffalo, bear and deer, of which there were vast herds roaming over the island on which he lived. The island was a small one of the west Indies.

Annonwan had long, coarse, black hair about eight inches long, and wore a pair of mocassins made of the skin of a small deer, the first one he had ever killed himself, and of course he was very proud of them.

He had on a kind of garment made of the skin of a wild goat which served as a shirt; also a pair of loosely fitting leggings made of buckskin with a string of beads around the bottom of them. His father was an old warrior and the chief of his tribe. He was dressed on nearly the same plan as his son, except that instead of having so much hair on his head as Annonwan had he had only the little bunch on the top so that if any Indian enemy of his got a chance, he could catch hold of this and scalp him. His name was Uncas.

Annonwan's mother, a squaw, was a mean, sturdy looking woman, dressed in a lot of blankets which she had made. She, and her daughter, tilled the fields and raised the crops while her husband laid around and slept, or went exploring in the adjacent islands.

One day Annonwan's father ordered all the men of the tribe to meet in his tent to make arrangements for an extensive buffalo and deer hunt on one of these islands. There was plenty of game on the island on which they lived, but they wanted to see some new land. All were in high spirits, and immediately began to prepare for the hunt.

On the west shore of the island were many beautiful stones, and other precious minerals.

Annonwan was sent there to get some of these stones to sharpen the heads of the warriors' arrows; in collecting them he found rich yellow rock about five inches square. He thought a great deal of the yellow rock, though he knew not its real value.

When ready to leave he emerged from the wood and saw what appeared to be a large bird and two smaller ones, coming directly toward where he was standing. Annonwan was much frightened and hid behind the bushes. Gradually the birds began to get near; he at once went back to tell the tribe about it, and soon all were on the bank watching the birds approach; then they saw that what they supposed to be birds were exceedingly large canaries with tails.

The Indians were very much amazed at this sight and many of them thought that the ships came from the land of the Great Spirit. At last the men on board the ships brought them to a standstill, and then the Indians heard a loud sound very much like thunder; some men got into a canoe, about as large as the Indians had, and began rowing to land.

As soon as the newcomers landed they set up a cross and knelt down on their knees to pray. The Indians did not know what to think of such actions. In due time the newcomers arose and the Indians followed them, who appeared to be the leaders of the party. They also seemed to be perfectly friendly and did not mean to harm the natives. Then all the white men came out with different kinds of beads which they gave to the natives. To Annonwan they gave a little toy, through the side of which a little string projected.

Annonwan pulled the little string the lid flew open and an ugly little head barked out, but a well-made bubble. Men of another order labored but to provoke for some practical need, and their work, humble, perhaps occasional in its design, is found to contain the elements that make human life interesting.

Homer sang, no doubt, in part to amuse his village audience, and in part to procure a good night's lodgings, as he wandered on Icarian and Anatolian shores, but the great idea of his song was stout enough, notwithstanding to fight his way through all obstructions, to complete his course.

The ordinance providing for the improvement of Clark street from Seventeenth to Ninth was given first passage despite a protest.
